Take a look at our internships, graduate opportunities and apprenticeships to see where your future could take you.

DID YOU KNOW?
We advised Infinitus Property (Hong Kong) Limited, a subsidiary of Lee Kum Kee (LKK), on the acquisition of the globally iconic 20 Fenchurch Street – ‘the Walkie Talkie’ – for a headline price of £1.3 billion – the largest single property transaction in the history of the UK property market.

YOUR DEVELOPMENT
At Cushman & Wakefield we’re passionate about your development. That’s why whichever programme you’re on, we’ll provide you with technical workshops, soft skills development and bespoke training throughout your journey.

You won’t be alone on this journey either. You’ll have a whole network of colleagues, many of which are industry experts, to learn from throughout your time with us.

Your learning doesn’t stop at the UK border. Our opportunities reach a global scale with some of our programmes offering international rotations across Europe; and once you qualify, the development continues with in-house training programmes delivered right up to International Partner level.
SUMMER INTERNSHIP
Six week programme
Overview
Across six weeks, you’ll see what it’s like to work in global real estate. We’ll give you real hands-on experience, with training to take you even further and feedback to help you realise your full potential. Perform well and you could secure a place on our graduate programme – your next step towards a professional career.

“One of the elements that struck me as the most impressive about the company was their people and how inviting and enjoyable they made the working environment.”

Vicky Jones, Summer Intern

GRADUATE OPPORTUNITIES
Two year programme
Overview
You want to kick off your professional career with the best start. On our two-year programme, you’ll focus on one business area, building in-depth knowledge with the support of our team, and working towards Chartership. You should be committed, ambitious and keen to collaborate, proving your potential.

“My team is very supportive and questions are encouraged. I enjoyed being given work that adds real value to the team and being able to see the output of my work used within larger projects.”

Claudia Tripp, Graduate Surveyor

APPRENTICESHIP
Five year programme
Overview
You don’t have to have been to university to have a big future. If higher education isn’t for you or if you want a degree but you don’t want the debt, then we have the answer. We offer an Apprenticeship Programme for those who have achieved or are expecting three A Levels at grade C or above, or equivalent.

You’ll not only earn, you’ll also learn, studying the Level 6 Chartered Surveyor Degree Apprenticeship, which includes an undergraduate degree in Real Estate on a part-time basis. You’ll also take the Assessment of Professional Competence (APC) through the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors, and build practical expertise by working on real projects for big clients.

“The best thing about the apprenticeship at Cushman & Wakefield is the people, and the help and support they provide to you whilst on the scheme.”

Katie Nelson, Apprentice Surveyor

“There is no one type of person we hire – we embrace diversity and recruit a mix of graduates to reflect the diversity of our clients. However, the things our early talent have in common are that they are collaborative, show potential, and are hungry to work for Cushman & Wakefield.”

George Roberts, Head of UK & Ireland
